HUALALAI PARK AND HEALTH CARE CENTER SITE PLAN AND COMPONENTS OVER VIEW KONA, BIG ISLAND HAWAII

This a place where the community can come together around a united purpose, a place where the interests, beliefs, health, and history of Hawaiians is represented. The reward is in what the park provides back to the community: a means of cultural, spiritual, and healing sustenance.

The Hualalai Park will be created through community dialogue and participation. The goal of the park is to create a space for everyone using local and international support. The buildings, materials, and site planning will be rooted in ancient Hawaiian building practices, yet delivered in a contemporary context.

MODULAR DIAGRAMATIC

A LIVING VILLAGE

Since the goal of the park is to become a sustainable community center, the three villages designated by the Department of Hawaiian Homelands will provide a variety of modular housing types. These will border the park and activate it. They will also provide types of housing not found in the area: opportunity and workforce housing. Some percentage of these units can be offered at very affordable costs. The modular houses will be net zero energy buildings. Solar, wind and passive forces will provide energy and comfortable spaces to live. A building package of pre-manufactured materials will be delivered to each site and erected by each homeowner's team.
